We reach for in vain!
Stars when they fail

What is more certain than this,
No man has gone down to his det

Blind Tom, the pianist who etrified us a quarter of a century , is now in a private retreat in Mark's place New York, and has St. Mark's place New York, and has been for some time an idiot, and now consumption has set its iron grasp upon his once strong frame, and his days are numbered. Blind Tom earned in his day something like a half million dollars. To-day he is compartively a rauper, and the wonder is what has become of the wonder is what has become of the fortun he made as he was always. in charge of a guardian, and was never allowed to spend it.

Judge Andrews, of the Suprema Court, has confirmed a report of Referee Jerome Buck, allowing the estate of Daniel P. Holland $3,000 setate of Daniel P. Holland $3,000 for services given and necessaries furnished the mad musician during the lifetime of Holland. The judge observed that it was sadly apparent that there would be nothing left for the maintenance of the poor idiot after all claims were paid.

The mad musician's real name is Thomas Wiggins. He was born in Virginia about forty-six years ago. His mother was a slave. From the time he was able to toddle around the negro cabins on his master's plantation Tom displayed wonderful powers us a musician. He could play on any kind of instrument, and never powers as a musician. He could play on any kind of instrument, and never had an instructor. With the surrender of Lee at Appomattox, Tom became a free man. Colonel J. W. Bethune saw his pecuniary value, and got an order from a Virginia court appointing him a committe for the maintenance and safety of Blind

Tom.

In those days Tom earned for his manager, from $2,000 to $4,000 a week. His old slave mother, Charity Wiggins, thought that she ought to get hold of a slice of his earnings.

When Colonel Bethune died a few sycars ago he left Tom to the care of this wife, Elise. She, in time, was appointed a committee by the court to maintain Tom.

The wonder is what has become of the money which Colonel Bethune was obliged by mandate of the court to deposit for Tom's maintenance. It was supposed to be twenty-five per cent of the net proceeds of the entertainments given. That would give Tom at least $125,000, in his own right. There is now, it is authoritative. Tom at least $125,000, in his own right. There is now, it is authoritatively stated, less than $5,000 in the exchequer. The $3,000 judgment just entered will make an awful gash in the fund. Present indications are that Blind Tom, who earned over half a million of dollars, will die in the poorhouse and be buried in Potter's fald.

We went down into the baggage department, where the performance wouldn't attract so much attention, and the fellow began passing his hands over Tom's head and face and also rubbing his hands. He hadn't worked a minute before Tom said he felt better, and in ten the headache was entirely gone.

"Now, don't offer to pay me or I shall be offended," he said, as he stopped work," and you'd better sit quiet right where you are for about ten minutes. Close your eyes, thus, and lean back a little more, so."

He bowed himself out in a grace-ful way, and had been gone fifteen minutes when Tom carefully arose, opened his eyes, and suddenly called
